In the history of the United States of America, only 3,500 people have demonstrated the sacrifice, courage, tenacity and bravery to earn the medal of honor. An exhibit honoring those heroes has opened at the Air Force Academy.

They are men for whom "above and beyond the call of duty" has real meaning. They are honored in the nation's first traveling photographic exhibit of the military's highest decoration.

The exhibit, Visions Of Valor, will open to the public on June 2nd at the Air Force Academy Visitor's Center.
